Terminal Railroad pleads guilty

Association admits felony crimes against environment

Special to the Journal

Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis has pled guilty to an "information" charging it with crimes against the environment.

An information is a charging document separate from an indictment, and it does not go to a grand jury.

From 1992 through 1994, Terminal Railroad discharged without a permit, waste oil and solvents from a poorly-maintained oil-water separator into a ditch draining into the Cahokia Canal and the Mississippi River, according to information supplied by W. Charles Grace, U.S. attorney for the Southern District of Illinois.

Terminal Railroad pled guilty before the United States District Court for Southern Illinois in East St. Louis to two felony counts under the Clean Water Act, agreed to pay a fine of $500,000 and agreed to pay restitution to the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) for emergency response costs estimated at $26,073.

The court set sentencing for 1:30 p.m. Dec. 5 in East St. Louis.

Terminal Railroad cleaned the grime, oil and grease from locomotives by spraying them with solvents. The railroad captured the waste in pits and

Congress could break the chain
Bridge maintenance funding in doubtBy Scott Kelly
Staff writer

If Congress decides to cut off funding for "rail-trail" projects, maintaining the Old Chain of Rocks Bridge after it's turned into a pedestrian trail could be difficult.

The Old Chain of Rocks Bridge project already has Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) grant money, and will use the funds to help open the bridge next September.

The problem lies in maintaining the bridge once it's open, said Lou Mavros, project director for the Chain of Rocks bridge.

"We'll have to maintain it like any other bridge... and we need all the funding we can get," he said. The project's organizers would like to have more grant money.

Last week, the Washington, D.C.-based Rails-to-Trails Conservancy placed the Chain of Rocks project on its 10 most endangered projects list. The 10 projects, most in eastern states, would turn abandoned railroad lines into pedestrian trails.

"This is not alarmism," David Burnwell,

CHAIN OF ROCKS BRIDGE

president of Rails-to-Trails, said last week. "We are simply making sure that people know in advance that their federal elected officials will decide... whether projects that are in the works will live or die."

Some trail projects "may never see the light of day," if Congress does not extend funding, Burnwell said.

If the ISTEA money is taken away, "we'll just have to go around to other sources and raise money," Mavros said.

Congress will debate the future of ISTEA this month. The ISTEA created the Transportation Enhancements Program, which makes federal money available for rail-trails, bike and pedestrian trails, historic preservation and historic conservation.

A total of $2.6 billion over six years, less than 2 percent of total federal transportation funds, was set aside for the Enhancements program, according to Rails-to-Trails.

Ryan makes pitch for governorBy Jason White
Staff writer

Secretary of State George Ryan announced his candidacy for governor in Cahokia Wednesday, and one local resident said she liked what they saw.

"George Ryan has been a big supporter of libraries," Cahokia Public Library Director Loretta Lopinot said. "He's been instrumental in providing additional funding."

Officials throughout the region were also on hand for Ryan's speech, including Centerville Mayor Riley Owens and U.S. Rep. John Shimkus (R-Collinsville).

"I don't think anyone can carry the mantle of Mr. Republican in the state of Illinois easier than George Ryan can," Shimkus told some 200 supporters crowded into the St. Louis Downtown-Parks Airport.

Ryan has served as secretary of state since

"Governing is about... solving problems without concern for political fallout."

He won passage last year of a law lowering the legal limit for blood-alcohol content for drunken driving from 10 to 18. He also sponsored a law suspending teens' licenses for having any alcohol in their systems.

Flanked by family members and his wife, Laura Lynn, Ryan's speech focused on the Local Urban League hails HUD pact

Special to the Journal

Officials with the Urban League of Madison County say a recent agreement with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development will help create more affordable housing and combat housing discrimination.

Sandra Hudson, president and CEO of the county's Urban League, said the president and CEO of the National Urban League, Hugh Price, signed a memorandum of understanding with HUD Secretary Andrew Cuomo in Washington D.C., on Aug. 5.

The memorandum calls for a partnership of the Urban League and HUD to work together toward economic and community empowerment nationwide.

Hudson said the agreement also will help create more jobs, assist small businesses and enable the Urban League to work alongside with HUD in restoring inner-city neighborhoods.

HUD and the Urban League took advantage of an opportunity to use each other's resources and capabilities for their mutual benefit.

Those advantages included maximizing the use of HUD's programs and technical assistance by League affiliates, which will increase their effectiveness in delivering key services to their constituencies.

The second advantage is through HUD's field and headquarters staff, who will benefit from insights, expertise, experience, and community roots that have been developed by League affiliates through decades of work in each of their communities.

Both HUD and the Urban League will develop agreeable forms in order to form new or existing partnerships with private organizations interested in addressing the social and economic needs of communities served by League affiliates.

The Urban League's 114 affiliates already have begun a wide range of housing, economic development and community programs, many of which already are funded by HUD.

The agreement also will provide technical assistance valued at up to $1 million to the Urban League and its affiliates over two years.

By providing the technical assistance, HUD will use its resources to further

Host families still needed Cultural exchange students will arrive soon

Foreign high school students will arrive soon for academic program homestays, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families.

The students are all between the ages of 15 and 18, are English-speaking, have their own spending money and carry their own accident and health insurance, said John Doty, executive director of the Pacific Intercultural Exchange (PIE). PIE currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic career, where students attend local high schools.

PIE area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are

For the upcoming programs, Pacific has students from Spain, Denmark, Germany, Poland, Russia, Finland, Argentina, Brazil, Columbia, Paraguay, Australia, New Zealand, Croatia and many other countries. PIE has also been invited to participate in a special government-funded program to bring scholarship students from the newly independent states of the former Soviet Union to the United States.

Pacific is a nonprofit educational organization that has sponsored more than 13,000 students from 40 countries since its founding in 1975.

Granite City area families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call PIE at 1-800-631-1818.

Mitchell to appeal

Organizers of an effort to incorporate the Mitchell area have decided to appeal a judge's decision to throw out their petition. The petition would have placed the incorporation question on the November ballot.

The Aug. 27 decision to appeal means the incorporation committee will take the fight to the 6th District Appellate Court.

Mitchell residents are angry mainly because they believe the county board and the court have effectively shut them up.

New airport set for takeoff

The new MidAmerica Airport is preparing to spread its wings and fly.

Opening day for the airport, located off Highway 4 south of Interstate 64, is scheduled Nov. 1. The public is invited to "participate in a variety of activities that focus on celebrating the airport's inauguration."

The 53,000-square-foot terminal, which cost about $12 million, has ceiling-to-floor-length smoked glass windows, escalators, elevators and three main entrances.

Airport Director Rick Hargrove said the two-story building, which has a 7,000-square-foot basement, will have seating on the second floor for 400 passengers.

Initially, the terminal will be equipped with two cargo and two passenger gates. The terminal is designed for expansion to 85 gates, the same number as Lambert St. Louis International Airport.

Hargrove said that of 1,200 responses in a marketing survey conducted in the St. Louis metropolitan area 60 percent said they are either very likely or likely to use MidAmerica.

By as soon as November passengers may be using the facility and even area residents looking for something to do may be able to go to the airport, get something to eat, look at the local news and watch planes take off and land.

James Earl Ray may live longer

Convicted assassin James Earl Ray is in a life-and-death battle to get a new liver so he can prove he did not murder the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., his brother, Jerry Ray, said last week.

His brother must have a new liver in four months or he may die, and the mystery of who killed Dr. King will never be solved, Jerry Ray said.

James Earl Ray, 69, was born in Alton in 1928 and worked at the old International Shoe Co. tannery in Hartford before leaving the city to become one of the most notorious accused criminals in history.

Jerry Ray was optimistic about a report Wednesday from surgeon Dr. John Fung, who said James Earl Ray could live another nine or 10 years with a new liver.

Ray pleaded guilty of murdering King at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis in April 1968, but later recanted.

Judge seals dispute court file

A court file about a management dispute at an East Alton law firm, of which state Rep. Glenn Bradford of Glen Carbon is the president and majority shareholder, has been ordered sealed by a circuit judge.

Negotiations continue regarding Bradford's future role in management of Pratt, Bradford and Tobin, a large personal-injury law firm.

Bradford, a Democrat who represents Illinois' 112th Legislative District, and Governor Robin bought the firm from the late Paul L. Pratt in 1993. Last week, Bradford obtained a temporary restraining order that barred Pratt's estate from restricting his access to the firm's premises or his equipment and records.

Bradford, who was elected to the Illinois House last year, wants to reduce his participation in the firm. He, Tobin and the Pratt estate are trying to reach agreement on the details.

Few Labor Day fatalities reported

A car crash that killed a 29-year-old woman appears to be the lone traffic fatality this Labor Day weekend.

Area police reported no other fatal crashes, although there were several accidents with injuries. Most of those turned out to be minor mishaps causing only minor injuries, police said.

Police had stepped up patrols in an attempt to make sure such crashes didn't happen.

Roadblocks were set up throughout the Metro East, where police checked to see that motorists followed the rules, including wearing seat belts, following posted speed limit signs and driving sober.

Sex offender gets 5 years

A registered sex offender who lived in Holiday Shores has pleaded guilty in Madison County Circuit Court to four counts of aggravated criminal sexual abuse and was sentenced to five years in prison.

David Wooster, 47, of the 700 block of Riviera Circle, had been charged with sexually abusing a 15-year-old boy and another boy age 13 to 17.

Wooster was charged after Madison County sheriff's deputies were called to his house Aug. 15 to investigate a fight between Wooster and a 15-year-old.

Deputies found four youths home with Wooster. They said he apparently lured youths there with beer parties. Wooster had been set for a preliminary hearing on the charges.

Instead, he waived the hearing Aug. 29 as part of a plea bargain with the Madison County State's Attorney's Office.

Under the arrangement, Wooster pleaded guilty to all four counts in exchange for four concurrent five-year prison sentences.

As part of the plea bargain, Circuit Judge Charles Romani agreed to recommend that Wooster receive treatment while in prison.

Local man wins poetry award

Special to the Journal

Poetry may not be everyone's cup of tea, but Edgar McIntyre's cup ran over recently when his prose won several awards.

A certified nurse at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City, he has been writing poetry since his graduation from Venice High School in 1971. He only recently began thinking seriously about his avocation.

"I entered my poem, 'Sam,' in a contest held by the National Library of Poetry," McIntyre said. "I really didn't think much about it. I just put the words on paper and — bingo."

His effort resulted in an Editor's Choice Award for outstanding Achievement in Poetry and an International Poet of Merit Award. He received the awards at the recent Annual International Society of Poets Convention and Symposium in Washington, D.C., and as an added perk, met Florence Henderson, the keynote speaker for the convention.

"It was a one in a lifetime chance," McIntyre said. "I also met a lot of people from different nations and a few other celebrities."

Now that he is a member of the International Society of Poets, he is eligible to attend future conventions.

"At first, I really didn't feel I belonged there," he said. "But I did and it was exciting and I will come back."

When not writing poetry for competitions, McIntyre shares his talent with hospital staff members.

He hopes to one day prepare a compilation of his work.

"I've been writing poems since I got out of high school but I would just write them and put them away," he said. "My goal is to put them all in a book someday. I've got quite a few of them and I'm still writing."

Friendship traverses oceans

Liz's first words when I phoned the Dorra farmhouse in southwestern France were, "You're coming over for a visit!"

Not this year, regretfully, I replied, but Chris and Harry will be there in November and wanted me to check with you because they'd like to take you and Sami and Francis to dinner while they're in Paris.

Some preliminary arrangements were made, we caught up a little on recent news and again she asked, "And when are you coming back?" Next year, I promise, assuming we're both still above ground, I told her. And I mean it. One more time.

Our friendship goes back at least 55 years and though distance has separated us for a long time now, we have managed to get together, intermittently, whenever possible, the last time being in '94. We still share interests, and good memories.

The conversation occurred shortly after I'd had the opportunity to read the text of the marvelous advice that was first attributed to Kurt Vonnegut as being a speech he made to the MIT class of '97 and later discovered to be a column written by Mary Schimich, a Chicago Tribune columnist.

In terms of Liz, Schimich's pearls of wisdom hit home: "Understand that friends come and go, but with a precious few you should hold on. Work hard to bridge the gaps in geography and lifestyle, because the older you get, the more you need the people who knew you when you were young."

By this time I'm sure that thousands of internet-addicts have read Schimich's advice and if they're smart, they will profit from it.

Wearing sunscreen, of course, is simply common sense but a lot of the remainder is worth trying on for size. For one, the futility of worry. The lady knows whereof she speaks when she warns that "the real troubles in your life are apt to be things that never crossed your worried mind, the kind that blindsides you at 4 p.m. on some idle Tuesday."

Or how about keeping your old love letters and throwing away your old bank statements? "Whatever you do, don't congratulate yourself too much, or berate yourself either. Your choices are half chance. So are everybody else's."

"Enjoy your body. Use it every way you can. Don't be afraid of it or what other people think of it. It's the greatest instrument you'll ever own."

On a personal level, I especially liked being told to do one thing every day that scares you and I couldn't agree more with her admonition to "accept certain inalienable truths. Prices will rise. Politicians will philander. You, too, will get old. And when you do, you'll fantasize that when you were young, prices were reasonable, politicians were noble and children respected their elders. Respect your elders."

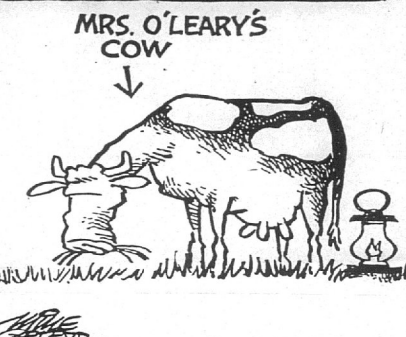

Having suffered through more commencement addresses than I can count, all duller than dust, Schimich's is one I'd recommend be read annually at any and all such services. Time will not change its truths.

True, her young listeners won't appreciate, at the time, the counsel to "Enjoy the power and beauty of your youth," because she's correct in adding, "Oh, never mind. You will not understand the power and beauty of your youth until they've faded," adding that in 20 years, they will do just that, including how fabulous they once looked and were not as fat as they imagined.

Maybe at least a few of those future graduates will remember the speech.

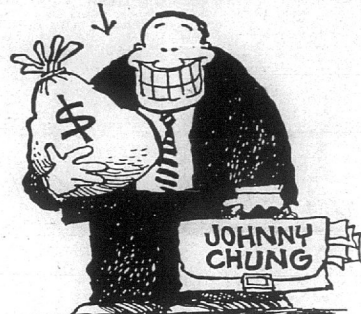

Once the hoax was uncovered, both Vonnegut and his wife took it in stride. They thought it clever and witty and Kurt said he wished he had written it. I couldn't agree with them more. I, too, wish it was my own work.

SEC. O'LEARY'S CASH COW

A JOURNAL EDITORIAL

Mitchell offers enough to get in the game

Some things Mitchell has, and some things it has not.

It has a name. It has people, mostly good, and like other towns, some bad. It has houses, a few businesses, a school and a firehouse or two. It also has farmland, railroads, highways and interstates.

It even has a place in history. It's easy to find a reproduction of an old Route 66 map these days. It still appears on many modern maps. West of Edwardsville and north of Granite City, there it is.

Or is it? Mitchell has no city hall, no police department, and the fire department is volunteer. It has no city charter, and no definite boundaries established. The school is there, but it's part of another district. A post office is there, but without its own ZIP code.

It has a mayor, and no official representative of any kind, nor any official population.

One more thing Mitchell does have is land. And everybody else — from Roxana to Hartford to Edwardsville to Pontoon Beach to Granite City — would like to have some of it.

Now that the Gateway Commerce Center is planned at Highway 111 and Interstate 270, those cities want Mitchell's land bad.

However, Mitchell exists — be it a town, city, village, whatever — and cannot be divided up for the interests of the surrounding communities.

Ask an acquaintance where they're from, and if they say "Mitchell" what comes to mind? The fact is, if anything comes to mind then one must admit that Mitchell exists as well.

Since the entity exists, then it also deserves a chance to determine its own fate. Just like every resident, business owner and established incorporation, it has the right to choose its own path.

Certainly, there are laws and guidelines set up to ensure places like Mitchell don't step on anyone else's toes when trying to incorporate. In fact, the boundary lines initially drawn up by Mitchell organizers were unrealistic. One can't expect Roxana and Granite City to accept Mitchell bumping against them, leaving them no room to grow.

Yet Mitchell is there. One can drive through it. A person knows when they're there, just as he or she knows when they're in Edwardsville or Granite City or Pontoon Beach. So don't let Mitchell it doesn't exist, because that will just infuriate the people who call it "home."

And Mitchell organizers, consider redrawing the proposed boundary lines to a more reasonable extent. That won't give the proposed village as much power in the system, or tax base to work with, but it might help Mitchell get more than it has now.

SOUND OFF!

Ailing it out

It's really easy for Unit 1 administrators to sit in air-conditioned offices and tell the students they will be no heat schedule. I'd like to invite these same administrators to Twin Echo or Jefferson School for a day of classes and see if they could stand the heat. I'd also like to see how well and how much they could learn in these conditions. Give the kids in an air-conditioned school a break.

Too much time

Yeah, yesterday we received in the mail a questionnaire . . . from Senator Watson. Now I think that if you answer that it is self-incriminating. You're supposed to sign it. I wouldn't have anything to do with it because I think if you're gonna have a question and answer thing you should have the solutions. I mean they aren't getting paid for anything but to drive us crazy. Thank you.

Psychic friends

Ok, I'd like to know why the pain in my lower torso intensifies every time I see that truck comes and parks on Stawton Road and Montgomery Street in Troy. Like they are now. What connection does that have with, I mean the pain is when I'm outside but it's worse when I'm even inside when that truck comes along. Then it stays all afternoon. What's my house got to do with the post office truck? What kind of connection.

Not ailing

I'd say how about this: The doctor's tell the people, ordinary people to live a day at a time with their ailments or learn to live with their ailments a day at a time. I understand the CEO's must be free, because they are projecting their interest way into the year 2008. So how do they get away with it or why is it?

Powerful question

This is for the Granite City Press-Record or the Journal. It seems to me that the powers in Pontoon Beach should stop arguing among themselves and start attending to the business of the people. Their residents are in dire need of an electric stoplight along one of the side streets crossing Pontoon Road. It is practically impossible to get on the main drag from the residential area. So how about thinking of us for awhile. Thank you.

Let's learn a new language

I just read in the paper that Belleville Area College is offering free English as a second language lessons again. I would like to know if they're going to offer any of us taxpayers a free foreign language lesson.

Carnival not much fun

TO THE EDITOR: While the city of Madison enjoys the festivities at the St. Mary's Picnic this weekend, I'll be waiting for the whole thing to come to an end.

So far the event has caused me nothing but grief. One would think that the residents of the surrounding area would be shown some kind of consideration, but instead we've been told to "deal with it" (that's been happening for years).

The event doesn't start until Friday, however my headaches have already begun and it's only Tuesday. I've had a canopy constructed in front of my driveway, rendering it useless. My neighbor's car was hit by a drunken carnival worker and most importantly I'm stressed out about where I'm going to park my new car (this week). Will it be around the corner, if I'm lucky, or on the next street, or the next? When I asked a street department employee what would happen if my car was broken into or damaged, he replied, "That's why you have insurance."

I realize this event has been taking place for several years. My biggest complaint is that I was never notified of the plan to block my street for an entire week. Had I been in my house sleeping while they were erecting their canopy, I would have awakened to find that I could not leave my house.

All I ask is for a little consideration. Maybe a fier or a brief visit to let me know the plans for the upcoming week. I don't expect the event to be canceled just because I moved into the neighborhood. However, if the common courtesy from the city of Madison and St. Mary's Church would be greatly appreciated.

PBS to spotlight historic house

A historic house on St. Louis Street will star in a new television documentary about the Illinois architect who studied with Frank Lloyd Wright and later designed Australia's national capitol at Canberra.

Walter Burley Griffin, the subject of a new book and the documentary, left his mark in Edwardsville by designing the Ralph Griffin House for his brother. It went up across the street from Hadley House, which belonged to his wife's family.

"It's one of the best examples before 1910 of Griffin's use of the Prairie School style," said television producer Allison Davis of WILL-TV-12 in Urbana.

"Until 1910, he was using a style influenced by Wright, and then he became more abstract. This home was built in 1909," Davis said.

Davis, who is working with University of Illinois architectural historian and author Paul Kutny on the documentary, said historians are taking a fresh look at Griffin outside of Wright's shadow.

"People need to know there is another famous Illinois architect besides Frank Lloyd Wright," she said.

The documentary, including shots of the library Griffin designed in Anna, will be shown nationally on PBS in the fall of 1998. No time and date have been set.

The one hour film will be a companion piece to a documentary program about Wright by Ken Burns, who has done similar documentaries about the Civil War and the American game of baseball, among other subjects.

The Griffin House will help show Griffin's special vision, Davis said.

"His use of split levels was ahead of its time," she said, as evidenced by the stairs and separate spaces throughout the house, now owned by Rich and Mary Berry.

Rich Berry grew up loving the geometric windows and separate room levels after his parents moved into the house in 1961. He bought the house five years ago because he could not leave.

"We've been working on it the last three years to restore it to its original condition," Berry said. "It's a very comfortable house to live in."

His 2-year-old daughter, Katherine, has filled one room with toys. His wife, Mary, said Berry, medical director of the physical rehabilitation unit in sub-acute care at St. Clare's Hospital, is liking the house better, he said.

I like the windows and all the geometric designs. It is not butterflies or wheat or all that," Berry said.

The clean design makes decorating difficult — it's hard to add anything — and the family probably lives a little more carefully to avoid damage to the windows and woodwork, he said.

"If you break it, you cannot find a replacement," Davis said.

Davis said Edwardsville is lucky to have the house. Buildings so easily disappear, and know the architect through his actual work, she said.

Griffin's style emphasized the harmony of buildings and surroundings and featured strong shapes, experimental materials and simple, open floor plans. His vision extended to the landscape, including plans for the grounds at Northwestern Illinois universities.

"He did the landscaping here and planned the Black Gallery at Northwestern University," said Berry, who plans to restore the yard fully, along with the house.

"Some of the pieces are in front, the shrubs and the big hemlock. We just poured the sidewalks last month."

The movie makers agreed the house was beautiful but difficult to light for camera-man Tim Hartin, who spent hours looking through lenses and chasing shadows.

Griffin's story is Davis' third documentary, an art form she prefers but is still learning. Her regular program, "Prairie Fire," takes viewers on a monthly trip to visit people and places in central Illinois.

Davis said she picked Griffin, a fellow U of I graduate, for a documentary because he never has received the recognition in this country to match his talent or international reputation.

Australia, where he spent most of his adult life, honored Griffin with a stamp in 1963, even before Wright. And Griffin's stamp may be worth more, Davis said.

Area paradise for autumn hikers

By Ellen Ellick
Staff writer

When the smothering heat of summer finally gives way to ideal fall days, many people in the St. Louis area are stop talking about the weather and start spending more time outdoors enjoying it.

They tie on hiking boots or comfortable walking shoes, fill their water bottles, pack a lunch and let their two feet lead them through neighborhoods, parks, woodland trails and other favorite places. Depending on their mood, time and energy, they may ramble about for less than an hour or backpack for several days into remote corners of the Ozark wilderness.

They may be hiking in

search of birds, flora and fauna, or they may be venturing into the woods to take a closer look at themselves. They may hike for their health or just for the fun of it.

Whatever the reason, the St. Louis area alone offers dozens of hiking trails through city, county and state parks. Drive a few hours in almost any direction and the choices become almost overwhelming. For beginner or marathoner, the St. Louis area is a hiker's dream.

The Journal asked a variety of hikers to recommend some of their favorite places. Here are some of those recommendations:

Robert Rubright, who has achieved some celebrity with his book "Walks and Rambles in and around St. Louis," recommends the Powder Valley Conservation Nature Center in Kirkwood for beginners. The paths are paved and the longest hike is only 1.5 miles, but they're hilly enough to provide aerobic exercise, he said.

For a flat walk, Francis Park in South County, where he's lived in St. Louis all his lives don't know about it," Rubright said.

In addition, Rubright recommends Laumeier Sculpture Park in South County, where he said the 2-1/2-mile hike should be spectacular in the fall. He also likes the 4-1/2-mile oval trail through Queeny Park in West County, a trail which he says has everything from wildlife to the Dog Museum.

"It's the only place I know where people strut their dogs, hoping they'll be discovered," Rubright said.

For those who want to drive a ways, there's the 8-mile hike in the John M. Olin Nature Preserve in Godfrey, Ill.

"It's absolutely ideal," Rubright said. The trail runs along the Mississippi River and also through upland forest, bottom lands and past a waterfall.

Ben Knox, who plans and leads a variety of hikes for the St. Louis County Department of Parks and Recreation, points out that hikers can choose from paved trails, which are handicapped-accessible, and from natural trails with dirt and rock surfaces. Of the asphalt-surfaced trails, he suggests the 1.2-mile Lakeside Trail in Spanish Lake Park in North County, the 4.5-mile trail in Creve Coeur Park in West County, the 2.8-mile trail through Jefferson Barracks Park in South County, and the new 1-mile hike in Simpson Park at Marshall Road in Valley Park.

He also made speeches in Rockford, Chicago, Springfield, Carbondale, Peoria, Moline and Kankakee to announce his candidacy.

In the early days of classes this semester at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Shane Logan, a sophomore from Trenton, was working on his favorite stress-reducing activity: roller blading.

"It's good exercise and it gets my mind off my homework," he said. "When I skate between classes, it helps my concentration."

Kenny Chasteen, a sophomore from Collinsville, prefers basketball to relieve the tension.

"I've played on my church league at Holy Cross and this always seems to help," he said.

Whether dealing with tension, breaking in a new schedule or visiting the library for the first time this semester, some 11,150 students have started back to classes at the school.

The enrollment represents an increase of about 250 students, said Sam Smith of University News Service.

"Our new freshman enrollment is up about 10 percent," he said.

"Though we won't have the exact numbers for a few days, we're up about 250 students."

The reasons are demographic: The number of high school graduates is up, and we are able to recruit new freshmen because of the residence hall," he said.

The school also has a new chancellor, David Werner, who was appointed on an interim basis to replace Nancy Belch until a new chancellor can be hired.

And, for the first time in the university's history, classes are scheduled to begin at 8 a.m.

Sophomore Leslie Damann from Belleville has recently switched from evening classes to day classes. "I have an eight o'clock class and it isn't that bad," she said. "I'm still getting used to all the people around (during the day)."

Meddie Garreau, who transferred to SIUE from UMSL, is used to the 8 a.m. classes. He said the only way to do it from where he lived in St. Charles was to move to Edwardsville.

"The traffic coming over is unbelievable, but the time isn't that bad," Garreau said.

For some students the adjustment is more than a new schedule. Some are living away from home for the first time.

Jovanni Snipe, a freshman from south Chicago, decided on SIUE after a representative came to Holy Trinity High School with a brochure on the university. "I won't be going home until the holidays," he said. "But I have enough to keep me busy."

Kirsten Kemmer, a freshman from Knoxville, Ill., was attracted by SIUE because it is "a small off to the side campus."

"I'm about three hours from home and that's just far enough," she said.

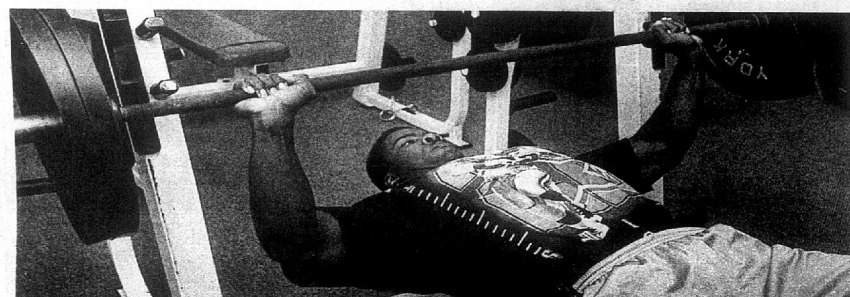

Torey Dunn said he considers his adjustment — he's a 25-years-old freshman.

"I just got out of the Air Force," he said. "My wife is a captain in the Air Force and she's finished with school. Now it's my turn."

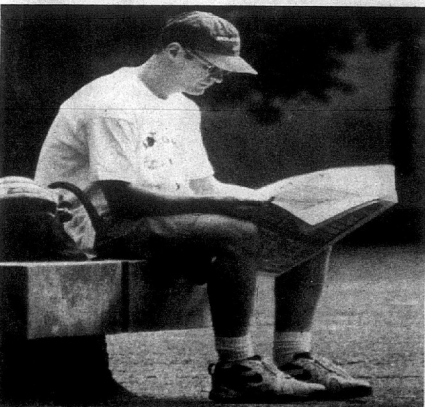

"Some of the 18-year-olds," he said, "can get around a little easier, but I have experience on my side."

channeled it to an oil-water separator, which was a buried railroad tank car with baffles added.

The railroad also channeled its storm water and sewer lines into the oil-water separator, which then discharged the pollutants and wastes into a tributary to the Cahokia Canal, according to Grace's office.

The canal flows into the Mississippi.

In 1992, a consultant advised Terminal Railroad of these environmental violations. The corporation failed to notify the responsible authorities as required by law. The corporation also failed to discharge the pollutants until April 14, 1994, when the IEPA discovered discharges after receiving an anonymous complaint.

IEPA is supervising Terminal's cleanup of the contaminated site.

On the first count for discharging pollutants without a permit, Terminal Railroad faces a maximum fine of the greater amount of $500,000, $50,000 per day of violation, or twice the gross gain or loss from the offense.

Assistant United States Attorney Joel Merkel said that "those are the fines the court can impose regardless of any agreement they reach with us."

(Some information for this story was provided by a journal staff writer Scott Kelly.)

At the national level, HUD and Urban League staffs will be encouraged to meet and work together to enhance the purpose of the Memorandum of Understanding.

Villa faces challenge in new position

When it was announced last spring that Mike Villa would be the new head boys soccer coach at Triad High School, the opinions about the nationally acclaimed coach were as many and varied as his many victories.

In the 30-plus years I've been covering local high school sports, I can't remember any coaching appointment creating such a stir or approaching such a magnitude. It's very seldom that a nationally acclaimed coach will leave a program to take on a job that is undoubtedly a step down. Most would leave for the college ranks or for at least as equally as good of a high school program.

Of course, in Villa's situation, he didn't leave on his own accord. He was forced out by the administrators at Vianney High School, where he had built the all-boys Catholic school into a national powerhouse. His teams won seven state Missouri championships in a state which is recognized as one of the top soccer states in the country. In 28 seasons at Vianney, Villa compiled a 461-112-7 record for a .769 winning percentage.

His coaching numbers are impeccable, but some would question if the end justifies the means. And that's where Villa will be walking the tightrope during his stay at Triad's school. The veteran coach knows Triad is not Vianney, where more than 100 boys would regularly come out for the program. The competition was fierce at the St. Louis county school. He won't have the luxury of quality and quantity at Triad that he had at Vianney.

The arrival of Villa to the right side of the Mississippi undoubtedly has caught the attention of the coaching fraternity. Some praise the move, saying Villa brings more credibility to the high school ranks on this side of the river. This side of the river generally has an inferiority complex when teams go up against the St. Louis schools.

"Triad would have won regardless of who would have been coaching them for the next two years," says Mark Schwarzkopf, the veteran Edwardsville High coach. "I would have liked to have seen Triad name some young coach from this side of the river to coach the team."

"The expectations are high at Triad. They expect to win the first small-state tournament championship they have. They have an excellent chance of doing it."

Schwarzkopf points out, even without Villa coaching the Knights last season, that Triad was given the No. 2 seed in the sectional last year when it was one class. So, the Knights performed well last year, even without Villa.

Veteran Granite City coach Gene Baker, owner of nine Illinois state championships, takes a different approach to Villa's arrival. Baker says it "was an injustice" to Villa the way he was booted out of Vianney.

"Vianney's loss is Triad's gain," Baker said. "He relates to his players well. He's a good man, a good coach, and the kids love him."

Baker says Villa is flexible enough to change his ways to suit the Triad players. He believes he'll be successful in his new role.

Triad returns a strong junior nucleus that produced one of the top teams in the area last season.

Baker, like Villa nationally acclaimed, will enter another hall of fame tonight when he is inducted into the St. Louis Soccer Hall of Fame at the Regal Hotel in downtown St. Louis. Baker, entering his 25th season at Granite City, will join two of his uncles, now deceased, Frank Houston and Al Obelle, in the St. Louis hall of fame. Baker also is in the Illinois State Soccer Coaches Association Hall of Fame and the Granite City Sports Hall of Fame.

Warriors seek 1st win at O'Fallon

The Granite City Warriors (0-1) meet the O'Fallon Panthers (1-0) on Friday at O'Fallon Township Stadium. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

O'Fallon coach Gary Bridell knows that if his Panthers are to defeat Granite City, mistakes will have to be kept to a minimum.

"There were just too many penalties and too many mistakes against (Belleville) West that put us in a hole," said Bridell. "If we keep getting penalized and keep fumbling the ball, we're not going to win many games."

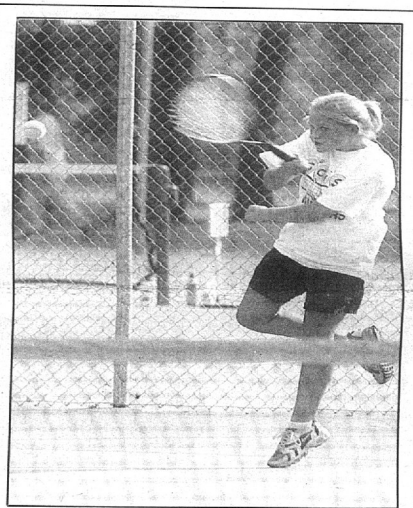

"Our scouts saw Granite City play Cahokia and tell us they are a much better team than that game indicated," Bridell added. "Their line looked really good and they executed very well on both sides of the ball. They just had the misfortune to start the season against an awfully good ball club."

Warriors coach Nick Petrillo was sounding the same note.

Dellbringge making impact at UK

Usually, whether or not the University of Kentucky women's soccer team wins or loses its matches, even plays them, is of little interest to Granite City residents.

Usually, But this year is a bit different. Lexington seems a lot closer to the Tri-City region.

The 'Cats kicked off the 1997 soccer season on Aug. 29 against Clemson, the eighth-ranked team in the nation. In the lineup that night were three true freshmen: Jen Reese, Annie Gage and Granite City's own Jaime Dellbringge.

Though Kentucky lost to Clemson 2-0, Dellbringge started and played the entire game and was complimented by her coach, Warren Lipka, in his post-game comments to the team.

Of his three freshman starters, Lipka said, "They were highly touted recruits. They came in very physically fit and they've adjusted to the upperclassmen in their areas of the field. They've learned the system quickly and they've earned the right to be on the field."

Baker to be inducted into Missouri hall

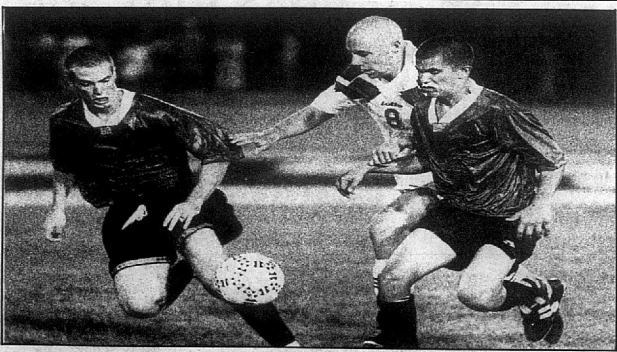

By Patrick C. Heston

Tonight is Gene Baker's night. Baker, the all-time winningest soccer coach in Illinois high school history and a standout back on the 1965 St. Louis University Billiken team that won the NCAA championship with an undefeated record, will be inducted to Missouri's Hall of Fame for Soccer at festivities held tonight at the Regal Riverfront Hotel in St. Louis.

Baker will join several other soccer greats who will be honored at the Old Time Hall of Fame Soccer Player Association's 25th annual dinner.

In his 25th season as varsity soccer coach at Granite City High School, Baker has directed a state record nine state championship teams.

Watch for details of coach Baker's big night in Sunday's Granite City Journal.

Cox making habit of bad behavior

By Patrick C. Heston
Staff writer

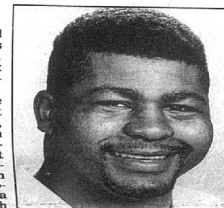

The problem isn't that Bryan Cox doesn't understand.

The problem is that he doesn't remember. Cox, a linebacker for the Chicago Bears and a former high school football star at East St. Louis Senior, was fined $10,000 by coach Dave Wannstedt on Tuesday for his inexcusable series of outbursts in Monday night's game against the Green Bay Packers.

It wasn't the first such fine levied against Cox.

In fact, it was the eighth time in four seasons that Cox has been fined. His total out-of-pocket expenditures have now reached $123,000. Included in that figure is an $87,500 fine suffered last season, also in a game against the Packers at Chicago's Soldier Field.

"Sooner or later, he must learn to hold his temper and his tongue, not to release them on the field."

Bryan Cox

Ex-East St. Louis star al vendetta against him. He even sued the league this spring.

But he was more subdued after the fine was levied. "I can't remember being that out of control in a long time," he said. "It was just frustration. It was wrong again and I understand Dave's actions. I think it could have gotten a lot worse and it was going to get a lot worse in a hurry had I stayed in. Because then it was going to go: 'You're going to hurt me, now I'm going to hurt you' type of thing."

"I'm in agreement with (the fine). If it was another member of the team, I would have expected the same action to be (See COX, Page 2B)

What landed Cox in trouble with Wannstedt was not simply three unsportsmanlike conduct penalties midway through the fourth quarter of Monday night's game, but also his childish temper tantrum along the sideline once Wannstedt pulled him from the game.

What has Cox still in trouble with the NFL is his late hit to the back of the head of the Packers' Adam Timmerman. "It is still unclear whether or not Wannstedt's stiff fine has softened any action yet to be taken by NFL officials. What is clear, however, is that Bryan Cox needs to remember when he knows now when next he finds himself in the heat of battle."

"It was wrong again," said Cox of the incident, "and I understand Dave's actions."

The operative word in that confession is "again."

Cox has been wrong before. Cox has understood before that he was wrong. But that didn't keep Cox from forgetting...again. Sooner or later, he must remember in anticipation of his actions, not in retrospect. Sooner or later, he must learn to hold his temper and his tongue, not to release them on the field. Sooner or later, he must leave behind the tantrums of childhood and move on to mature adulthood.

Bryan Cox needs to grow up. Any parent with a child who is 28 going on 12 understands that.

Bryan Cox needs to understand that. He needs to grow up.

Give a baby a big head, the big bucks, and let him play in the big time and it doesn't mean he's a big person. A baby's still a baby even though he wears $2,000 suits and flaunts his talent in front of 60,000 spectators. And baby's don't need more pampering. Babies need to grow up.

Grow up, Bryan Cox. "If that $10,000 helps us become better as a team, that's a well-spent $10,000," said Cox of his fine.

But when does "well-spent" money become "too much money"? Is $123,000 still well-spent money? If Cox's first $113,000 in fines didn't help the Bears become a better team, why are we to assume that his most recent $10,000 fine is somehow suddenly going to do the job? It's just another example of his immaturity, if Cox really believes his fines will help his team. Eventually, if not already, the Bears have to be asking themselves, "Just how much of this guy's help do we need?"

You want to help the Bears, Bryan Cox? Grow up.

Cahokia," he said. "We could have played better but, really, considering the level of competition, we played rather well."
"The things we did wrong were little things," Petrillo explained. "I mean by that, they are easily corrected. I'm talking blown assignments, blocks missed, not being where you should have been. They are things that are corrected simply by being where you're supposed to be and by doing your job. We could have scored several times against Cahokia if we had just made one simple block each time. These are things we can shore up, things we are shoring up. I'll think we'll see a marked difference for the better this week."
This week means another strong backfield coming against the Warriors' defense.

taken. I have no problem with it. If that $10,000 helps us become better as a team, that's a well-spent $10,000."
The trade, however, didn't help on Monday as the Bears lost to Green Bay 38-24.
Cox was irate over Packers substitutions, claiming they were leaving 13 men on the field until the last second, which made it nearly impossible for the Bears to match up. He was also angry at what he believed were late hits on the part of several Green Bay players. He constantly complained to the referees, but when the situation in his estimation did not change, he vented his anger in ways that drew the three flags and, eventually, the fine from Wannstedt.
Wannstedt pointed out that referees, not players, are the ones who should worry about runs the ball well and is quick and agile on his feet. Andre Ramsey, a back with breakaway speed, and big, strong Kevin Jordan complete the backfield for O'Fallon. Plus, the Panthers have Preston Jacobs running the passing routes. Jacobs has good hands and good speed. "He's not very big," said Petrillo, "but he makes big plays."

It is those big plays Granite City must stop if it is to win on Friday.
And winning is definitely in the cards, said Petrillo.
"O'Fallon may not be as good as last year, but they are a well-disciplined, well-coached team that knows what it is supposed to do. They will be a formidable opponent. But we feel we can play with them. In fact, from here on out, we should be very competitive," Petrillo pointed to three areas where the Warriors must do the job in order to pick up their first victory of the season.

On the line, the Warriors must utilize their superior speed. "They're bigger than we are on the line," said Petrillo. "But we believe that our quickness, inside the tackles, can nullify their size."
On defense, Granite must stop the run. "Everyone in their backfield is like a wind-up toy: you hit them but their legs keep moving," Petrillo said. "They'll battle you every inch of the way. We have to hit them solidly and get them to the ground."
On offense, Petrillo's squad must control the ball. "I'm not saying we're a three-yards-and-a-cloud-of-dust team," said the Warriors' coach. "But, we have to run the ball successfully if we are going to win."

substitutions. "Things like that are going to happen every game," he said. "You just got to go on. You can't let it linger in your mind and let it become an issue. You can't be affected by it on the field."
Cox understands that now. "It was a bad situation," he said of the whole episode.
Bad enough, in fact, that it is not yet behind him.
NFL officials are reviewing the film of the game. Specifically, the play in which Cox drilled Packers guard Adam Timmerman in the back of the head after the whistle. As a result of that play, and the pushing and shoving match it evoked, Cox could be fined an additional $5,000 minimum and, possibly, be suspended.
"Anything involving fighting is reviewed," said NFL spokesman Greg Aiello. "And that has to be reviewed as a potential fighting incident."

"I can't remember being that out of control in a long time. It was just frustration. It was wrong again and I understand Dave's actions."
— Bryan Cox
Bears linebacker

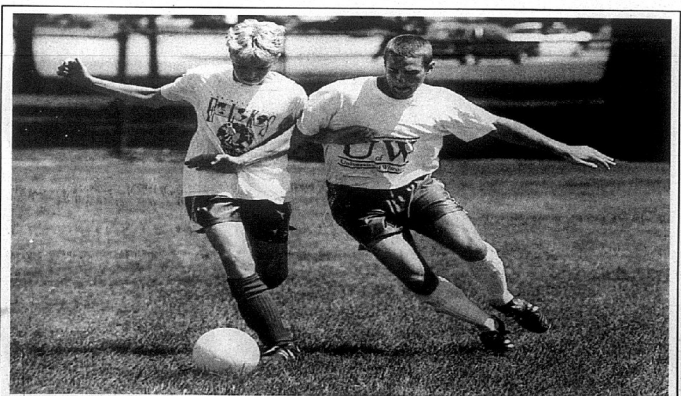

Ironically, Wannstedt may have saved Cox a worse fate by removing his linebacker from the game and by administering the largest single player fine in Chicago Bears history.

Freshman

"I'm the type of coach that if you come in and prove yourself, you'll have the opportunity to play."
It comes as no surprise to those who watched Dellbringe through her illustrative career at Granite City High School that she quickly proved herself to be a quick learner and a coveted starting spot with an elite NCAA Division I team.
Lipka is surrounded by freshman. Half the UK roster for 1997, 14 players in all, are true freshmen.
"The freshmen are excited," said Dellbringe, "but we really haven't talked about nervous jitters at all."

Dellbringe feels that the number of freshmen on the squad has made the transition from high school to college ball easier for her and the other newcomers.
It doesn't take much reading between the lines to realize that Kentucky fields an inexperienced group for 1997. But, Lipka is quick to point out, this year's team may well be the best to ever wear the 'Cats insignia.
"(Assistant coach) Kim Bucci made the point that this could be the best team we've had in a long time. We have as a group," Lipka said. "We've had good teams before, but the skill level on this team is the best."

Kentucky should make some serious noise in both the Southeastern Conference and the NCAA tournament over the next four years.
And right in the middle of the mix will be our very own Granite City connection: Jaime Dellbringe.

Kahoks may gain victory by forfeit

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

It is definitely not the way Collinsville High football coach Tim Kane wanted to earn his first victory — by a forfeit.

However, there is a 99.9 percent chance that the Kahoks and Kane will earn their first win of the 1997 campaign without having to play a down.

Collinsville and Mascoutah are scheduled to clash at 7:30 p.m. Friday evening at Kahok Stadium but the game most likely will not take place as the Indians (0-1) will have to forfeit.

"There is a 99.9 percent chance we won't play," Mascoutah football coach John Zerzal said.

The reason for the Mascoutah forfeit is because teachers in Mascoutah District 19 voted to strike Monday night and were on the picket lines first thing Tuesday morning.

Mascoutah teachers say they will negotiate at anytime, but Zerzal said talks most likely will not take place this week because federal mediators are in Washington for a national convention.

If the strike were settled and teachers and students returned to class Friday, the football game could go on as planned. According to the Illinois High School Association, the students have to be in school on game day.

Nearly 3,000 students are affected by the strike — the Larry LeMaster of Granite City finished fifth in the MasterCraft Figure 8 Barefoot tournament at Granite City on Aug. 9. Despite a leg injury, LeMaster won a pair of Intensity barefoot shorts and a $100 gift certificate from Barts. In figure 8 competition, two barefoot skiers start behind the same boat and are pulled in a figure 8 pattern. Whoever falls or crosses the wake first loses. The tournament is a double elimination format. The MasterCraft Barefoot Challenge, organized by Kevin and Carla Baugh of Holiday Shores, is in its fourth year. The tournaments introduce barefoot skiers to tournament competition and provide an opportunity for a fun time.

district's second in the last seven years. Among those students directly affected by the strike are both the Collinsville and Mascoutah football players. Both teams were looking to shore up mistakes made in season-opening losses. Collinsville was blanked by Civic Memorial 22-0 while Mascoutah fell to Mount Vernon.

"We're a young team," Zerjal said. "We need to play. We are going to get behind. We have a large group of sophomores that need to play."

Kane and Zerjal were supposed to meet last weekend to exchange game film, but once word of the strike was inevitable, the two coaches did not meet. The Kahoks will begin preparing for their Southwestern Conference clash with Granite City on Sept. 12.

What's bad for the Indians is they can't really begin preparing for their next game (7:30 p.m. Sept.) against Robinson High. The school board voted not to allow coaches to cross picket lines to work with athletes in any of the fall sports.

In 1991 when Zerjal was the chief union spokesman for the school district, the coaches were allowed to conduct practices with the athletes. Currently the athletes are meeting on their own to practice.

If the strike lasts for any length of time, the entire football season could be a washout for the Indians.

"There is no guarantee we will back by week three, four or five or who knows when. Golf, volleyball, soccer have already canceled games. Golf, volleyball and soccer, some of those games are easy to reschedule. With football, nobody is going to want to reschedule on a Tuesday afternoon with a Friday game coming up."

"Our hope is to be back against Triad and still have a mathematical chance at the playoffs. This is tough for our seniors."

Zerjal hopes this latest strike isn't setting any sort of a pattern. "This is the second strike in six years," Zerjal said. "We almost had a problem three years ago. I hope we don't get a reputation of having one (strike) every two to three years."

HOROSCOPE

Thursday, Sept. 4
A beauty-loving Libra moon presides with the improvement-oriented Virgo sun. Many move up, but here's some caution to those wanting to advance up the social ladder: Your self-esteem isn't based on how others accept you but how you view yourself. The stars are perfect for finding self-love right now. When relationships wear off, personal inventories still need to be made to feel whole.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
This time, someone else actually knows what's best for you. Running away from responsibilities is futile. Stop harping on the past. Pursue sought-after dreams. Listen to subtle hints and suggestions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Spend extra earnings on yourself. When making travel plans, seek radical departures from your usual routine. Paradise can fit your budget if you have the right mind-set. A major hang-up dissipates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
Everything you touch turns to gold, so consider investments and ambitions. A charming new contact has much to teach and you may bring a whole new world of possibility. A financial request is granted.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
Oversee others' progress to better understand the big picture. Seek out viable alternatives for an old method. Your family needs attention. Let a partner know you need him or her.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Be frugal now for security later on. Aim for consistency with deadlines and love relations. Cohorts are attentive, so express yourself. A longtime worry vanishes. A newfound freedom brings joy.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 4)
Your self-confidence bursts at the seams. Others respond positively to your charm in the next three months. Go to school or get special training to handle the challenges of a new job in November. A new love appears in December, but a second opportunity in January may be "it." Leo and Aquarius are splendid lovers. The best money months are next May and June.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
A friend echoes your sentiment exactly. Enjoy the present without questioning motives. Rely on your intuition. Others view you as savvy and ask for guidance. A beautiful surprise lights up the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Classics and study standbys help more than trendy fads. Verbalizing a problem helps. An old flame appears out of the woodwork. A rehearsal assures a successful presentation. Give an elder the benefit of the doubt.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
Pay attention to your wanderlust and plan a trip. Cerebral pursuits provide much stimulation. You have the right to feel great about a recent triumph. It's OK to advertise yourself a bit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Live it up! Stop talking yourself out of projects. Feuding family members only drain your energy, so disengage for now. Start networking. You improve every area of your life by enlarging your circle of pals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
A friend comes through now. Rewrite the book, or question existing methods. Clear away excessive material items to create mental space. Enjoy your transition period. If you don't share your opinion, no one will know.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Your passion tempers others' apathy. You can safely take emotional risks. A love interest senses increased maturity in you. A formal introduction boosts your career. You inspire people you don't even know.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Avoid playing favorites. Outsiders wonder how you juggle so much. A new edit or haircut makes you feel sensational. Your body language gives you away. Moderation is the key.

Don't worry: Beaver movie can't touch TV predecessor

"Ward, I'm worried about the Beaver," a concerned June Cleaver says. But sadly, there's a lot more than the Beaver to worry about in the big-screen incarnation of America's prototypical fictional suburban family.

In Universal's "Leave It to Beaver," June (Janine Turner) is a blond and buxom soccer mom who vacuums in a dress. Wally's girlfriend jilts him for a grunge teen with a hoop earring. Larry Mondello is in Ritalin. Eddie Haskell is threatened with a restraining order.

And the Beaver? In a world of Game Boys and skateboards, all he wants is a shiny new bike. If all this seems an incongruous jumble of eras and icons, it is. The big-screen resurrection of the TV show that handed us the perfectly packaged 1950s family simply doesn't work. Though good-hearted, it can't decide what it wants to be — ironic or sincere — so it ends up being nothing at all.

Not that you can entirely blame the filmmakers. After "Beavis and Butt-head" and "Married With Children," it's impossible to depict an idyllic 1950s suburb, much less one updated to fit the 1990s. Even the original "Beaver Movie" — which injected a healthy dose of sarcasm into the story of the pathetically clueless clan and did to the 1970s what this movie is trying to do to the 1950s — missed the target.

What is it with these big-screen nostalgia cruises any way?

Apparently, this is how oral tradition is passed down in the hypercommercial 1990s — remakes of old TV shows and movies are supposed to bridge the generation gap. Boomers and Xers can re-energize those old bad-TV synapses and share the mediocrity with their kids!

'Smile' likable, despite doubts

Is there room in today's frantic summer movie marketplace for a mild comedy about a yuppie couple desperately trying to have a baby?

Paramount Pictures seems to have its doubts. The studio failed to place a full-page ad in newspapers on the Sunday before release, a ritual for nearly all major-company movies.

Yet "A Smile Like Yours" offers a likable cast, some funny situations, and first-class production values. Its potential audience may be narrow, but it is likely to please those who see it.

Danny Robertson (Greg Kinnear) works as a hard-hat supervisor on the construction of a San Francisco high-rise. His wife, Jennifer (Lauren Holly), operates a perfume shop, where she tries to develop an aphrodisiac that will help inspire her husband. They have decided to start a family, but have been unable to do so.

They try everything, including substituting boxer shorts for his jockeys. But nothing seems to succeed. In desperation, they seek help from a fertility clinic. Much of the film's humor occurs there.

After repeated tests, their therapist (France Nuyen) announces Danny has a condition called "lazy swimmers." Artificial insemination is prescribed.

There are overdone running gags about Danny's attempts to make a donation in a room supplied with porno movies, and about Jennifer facing increasingly larger insemination tools.

"A Smile Like Yours" marks the directorial debut of Keith Samples, who also wrote the script with Kevin Meyer. He brings vigor to situations.

PDR celebrates 275 years

Area residents and others are invited to reveler to Prairie du Rocher on Sept. 28 for a celebration of the 275th anniversary of the founding of the village.

The French settles there in 1722 and descendants of the original inhabitants now live throughout the United States. For this anniversary event, former residents, descendants of the old French families and friends, are urged to come back and join the celebration.

At 9:30 a.m. Mass will be celebrated at St. Joseph's Parish Church. St. Joseph's became the parish church after 1765 when the original church, St. Anne's near Fort de Chartres, was abandoned under British rule.

André Prégaldin, noted researcher and genealogist, will discuss the French families and their influence.

Also available at the luncheon will be commemorative envelopes which will be hand canceled with a special dated stamp.

The anniversary program is sponsored by the French Colonial Preservation Society. Reservations for the luncheon may be made by calling 618-294-3463 or writing French Colonial Preservation Society, P.O. Box 163, Prairie du Rocher, IL 62234. Tickets are $12.

If so... Then Square Dancing may be just right for you. Besides being an activity that couples can participate in together, square dancing offers considerable health benefits. Also, it provides fun and good fellowship.

Beginning classes for Square Dancing are held on Tuesday evenings, 7:30 to 9:30 PM, starting September 9th. The first two classes are free to the public. Thereafter, they are $5 per couple.

A recent study by Dr. Aaron Blackburn stated that "Square dancing is a low-impact activity that helps keep the body in shape. Dancing can burn as many calories as walking, swimming, or riding a bicycle. Square dancing is a perfect exercise that can add longevity to a person's life."

Additional information on classes may be obtained by calling 288-9664 or 656-2176
